Enlightenment and Employment

Introduction: In the era of 20th century, education system became a barrier for getting a job, for creating a successful career. In Bangladesh, education became a nightmare to the students. After completing undergraduate, students fight to build a successful career. This mask making project reflects how students are struggling day by day to get a relevant job where the education system is a barrier itself. At the same time, desirable difficulties reflecting the difficulties of student life crisis.

Curriculum Integration: CI, the short abbreviation of curriculum integration was established to facilitate faculty and students from various year levels and study concentrations to work together and learn from each other. CI contributes to the active learning approaches to enhance the educational experience of students. This year's curriculum integration was based on the theme named desirable difficulties which is a theory of learning in which challenge is seen as the key of long term learning introduced by Robert A. Bjork and Elizabeth L. Bjork in 1994.

Face Negotiation Theory: The theory, face negotiation theory was formulated by Stella Ting-Toomey who proposed that face negotiation theory is based on the underlying assumption that, regardless of their culture, people are all concerned with saving face. This occurs because people from different cultures have different priorities when it comes to saving face and they have different ideas of what constitutes saving face.

Making a mask can be a significant contemplative journey, allowing me to find my character, stand up to feelings, and snare up with my inside inventiveness. Masks can constitute my best self, cover-up feelings, or respected characters, allowing me to confront tough sentiments. I will interface with my individual inventiveness and reveal covered-up features of my character through the thoughtful technique of creating. Masks will also be utilized as projections, underscoring my social intuition, tensions, and wants which suggests within the back of my covers is private and may be a viable gadget for self-discovery.

CI Theme: The theme of our mask making project is desirable difficulties. Desirable difficulties is relevant to our social life in various ways. The long term learning process relates with our education system, our everyday learning process and so on. There are lot of difficulties we face each and every day. Our education became an issue for the students who genuinely wants to build a successful career. In that case, students have to face lot of troubles finding a job. Our mask making is based on the theme where education system became a barrier to find a good job.

Our message: As we mentioned before that our mask making will portray the education system that became a barrier to the job market. It is a message that will give mass people that how students have been facing trouble finding a job whereas they are admitting into universities, believing that after finishing their studies they can build a good career in their life. In Bangladesh, it's tough to find a good job which relates to our study purpose. We chose this topic because it's an issue for the university students and it's a desirable difficulties where students desire to get a good job but the education system itself is a barrier to that.

Layout: We basically follow the traditional rules of the education system in our schools, colleges, or universities, and as a result, even though we are educated, we are not becoming suitable for the job market. We want to show that they are facing various obstacles in the job market. First, the mask on the board has green leaves on one side and brown leaves on the other side. This is meant to convey that in student life, we are fresh when we study. We may think that we are studying up-to-date, but when it comes to the job market, it becomes the opposite. We see that we have not achieved many qualities that are manifested in the brown part. Then we are disappointed. Books are our traditional books that we are taught. And this tree and the fruit stand mean that by studying, we are getting fruit, but that fruit is not useful. That result is causing problems in the job market later. The manifestation of this is a boy carrying the fruits of the tree.

Painting and Installation: We have used acrylic colours green, brown, black, orange, purple, blue, red, white, grey, and yellow in mask making. Also, we used paper board, folded wire, and wood pulp. First, we put the mask on a wooden board. Then we did the rest. Our small books are examples of what is taught in schools, colleges, or universities. And the tree is the education system, which is made of twisted wire and wooden pulp. And whatever reason is preventing us from getting a job in the job market that reason is given by Apple. After making the mask, we are happy because it turned out exactly as we wanted.

Realization: At the end of our mask-making, we think we two did a pretty good job. We had a good bond. Our teamwork and timely communication are our core strengths. If this mask is allowed to be done again, we will do it in 3D form. So that things are visualized. It's a bit late to understand our CI theme, so the work is a bit late. Next time, we will try to understand and get the work done perfectly. Other than that we haven't face any difficulties doing this project. We distributed the work between us and we are pretty happy with our project work. The project itself is a brain storming work where it will increase our critical thinking.

Role of Individual members:

1. Lourdes Mary Rozario: The mask was made on her face. Besides, she wrote the report with the help of her another group member. Developed the idea together.
2. Al Eakram Mahmud Shoumik: He did the whole painting and made the mask on Lourdes. Helped with the report writing and developed the idea of enlightenment and employment.

Some snaps of our mask making project:

Conclusion: Doing this course and making this project was fun. We enjoyed developing the idea and shared some of our thoughts about how we can improvise the project perfectly. Last but not the least, we learned, creating a mask can also be a part of communication which is not even part, face negotiation theory reflects the whole idea of making a mask. Thanks to our faculty and the instructor who made us learn something new in this project.
