Concept Paper of Video Art

Title:

Stolen

Idea:

This video art installation is based on The Pitfalls of National Consciousness. It shows how a revolutionary nation can begin with unity, sacrifice, and hope, but later get trapped by elite capture, empty slogans, and symbolic victories. The main message is that when national consciousness does not turn into social consciousness, the revolution can be stolen from the people who created it. The reason for choosing the title “Stolen” is because the national consciousness is stolen instead of being transformed into social consciousness, so I named it “Stolen” from that idea. The video art explores how one body becomes two roles – the revolutionary subject and the post- revolution elite. Using a single performer across two Sides, the piece shows how national consciousness fractures into contradiction. The revolution is not only stolen by others- it is also transformed within the same subject when power replaces struggle.

Visualization:

Shot 1:

Artist Al Eakram Mahmud Shoumik and the title stolen will be written on the wall in charcoal. The same shot will be shown on both Sides.

Camera Angle: long shot.

Shot 2:

Right Side: On the right side of the screen, a candle is melting.

Left Side: On the left side of the screen, a lightbulb is on blaze.

Camera Angle:

Right: Mid-long shot

Left: Mid-long shot

Video Message 1: The candle stands for sacrifice, struggle and the slow exhaustion of revolutionary hope.

Video Message 2: The bulb stands for power. Bright, controlled and detected from the people it claims to represent.

Video Message 3: When national unity fails to become social justice, light becomes performance instead of liberation.

Shot 3:

Right Side: A man has a cloth wrapped around his face. He is breathing heavily.

Left Side: A table fan. A microphone is placed next to it. The fan is running.

Camera Angle:

Right: Close – up shot

Video Message 1: The people are left breathless, silenced and unseen.

Video Message 2: Power keeps speaking but its voice is only noise.

Video Message 3: Communication breaks down when speech serves authority instead of trust.

Shot 4:

Right Side: A piece of paper flapping in the wind on a table.

Left Side: White paper on the table. A man is drawing the margins. He is drawing the margins straight.

Camera Angle:

Right: close – up shot to Mid-long shot.

Video Message 1: Memory is unstable when it belongs to the people.

Video Message 2: Power preserves history by straightening it, filing it and controlling its shape.

Video Message 3: Struggle becomes documentation and pain becomes administration.

Shot 5:

Right Side: An empty plate. Grains of rice are falling on the empty plate.

Left Side: A glass in a basin. Water has been added to the glass. Water is plummeting from above. Water is flowing down the glass.

Camera Angle:

Video Message 1: Material need remains even when victory is declared.

Video Message 2: Elite comfort appears symbolic when real hunger continues outside the frame.

Video Message 3: The nations promise is not equal for all.

Shot 6:

Right Side: The actor wraps a cloth around their body like protection. Then slowly removes it, folds it imperfectly, places it on the ground.

Left Side: Same guy. He is neatly arranging and ironing a piece of cloth.

Camera Angle:

Right: Mid-long shot.

Left: Mid-long shot

Video Message 1: The same flag carries sacrifice and control.

Video Message 2: Meaning shifts depending on position in power.

Shot 7:

Right Side: The actor looks into a mirror. Touches his own face, confused, as if he unable to recognize themselves.

Left Side: The same actor looks into a mirror and becomes happy. Then Turn away and give a devil smile.

Camera Angle:

Right: Mid-long shot.

Video Message 1: Identity splits.

Video Message 2: The people and the power cannot reconcile.

Video Message 3: Internal contradiction becomes visible.

Shot 8:

The actor sits in both frames. Same posture. Same framing. Then both Sides freeze.

Video Message: The final image reveals the truth: the revolution is not only stolen from the people. It is also stolen from within the self.
